RED SEA VII CONFERENCE
THE RED SEA AND THE GULF:
TWO MARITIME ALTERNATIVE ROUTES IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF GLOBAL ECONOMY
FROM LATE PREHISTORY TO MODERN TIMES
MAY 26-30, 2015
NAPLES, ITALY

The University of Naples "L'Orientale" will host the Red Sea VII conference, the latest in the successful series of conferences previously held at the British Museum, University of Southampton, University of Exeter (UK) and University of Tabuk (KSA).

For over a century the University "L'Orientale" conducts research in regions outside of Europe, including those of the Red Sea and the Gulf. The first expedition that has involved the University took place in the early years of the twentieth century on the shores of the Red Sea, in present Eritrea. In the last thirty years, the activities of "L'Orientale" in the coastal regions of the Red Sea have intensified considerably seeing involved, at various levels, professors, researchers, fellows, graduate students and students. In the field of archeology should be mentioned excavations in eastern Sudan, at the Pharaonic port of Mersa Gawasis and in the Egyptian Eastern Desert, the recent collaboration with the Eritrean Government and the CeRDO for the excavations at Adulis, Eritrea, the excavations in Ethiopia, Yemen and Saudi Arabia. In the field of linguistic and historical studies, "L'Orientale" conducts research projects in countries surrounding the Red Sea and beyond.

The Red Sea VII conference will be titled "The Red Sea and the Gulf: Two Maritime Alternative Routes in the Development of Global Economy, from Late Prehistory to Modern Times". The committee proposes for the first time a comparison, on a scientific level, between two sea corridors and their shores, the Red Sea and the Gulf, which are similar geographically and environmentally, complementary to each other as well as competitors in their economic and cultural interaction with the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean, both in the past and in the present. The conference will be an opportunity to meet and exchange information among scholars from worldwide institutions interested in the western Indian Ocean, and also an opportunity to share new ideas and to promote innovative projects based on international collaborations.

We are inviting speakers from around the world with an interest in the Red Sea and the Gulf to present on a wide range of subjects relating to the main topic of the conference. These include:

- Recent and ongoing research
- The Red Sea and the Gulf in the Global Economy
- Naval technologies and maritime knowledge in the Red Sea and the Gulf
- Campania, the Mediterranean and the Red Sea
- People, ideas, technologies and religions between the Red Sea and the Gulf
- Africa, Arabia, Persia: linguistic transitions
- Greek, Roman, and Byzantine Maritime Trade to the East

The last day of the conference will be devoted to two workshops:

"Legal regulations in the Red Sea and in the closed seas from past to present"

"Ports and Harbors of Bronze Age Egypt"

Academic posters and multimedia products for display at the conference are also welcome.

Abstracts for individual papers should be 250-500 words in length and accompanied with brief CV. Proposals for themed panels should comprise four individual abstracts plus a panel proposal of 300 words.

THE SUBMISSION DEADLINE IS DECEMBER 15, 2014.

NOTE: the selection of the papers to be presented will be made by the scientific committee. Notification of acceptance of papers will be given within two months from the deadline of due submissions.

The proceedings of previous Red Sea conferences have been regularly published. The committee intends to continue this tradition.
